Barbara Dailey is the director of the Division of Quality, Evaluation, & Health Outcomes within the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS). Ms. Dailey is responsible for leading quality improvement efforts for Medicaid and Children’s Health Insurance Programs.
(CHIP). In this capacity, she supports state efforts to demonstrate the impact of these programs aimed at achieving safe, effective, efficient, patient-centered, timely, and equitable care. The Division is responsible for monitoring several Medicaid grant programs, and providing technical assistance to states on managed care quality reporting, State Medicaid and CHIP Quality Improvement Strategies, EPSDT (Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis, and Testing) services, vaccination programs, and emerging issues in health care reform, including performance measurement and health information systems and exchange. Additionally, Ms. Dailey is leading the nation’s first National Medicaid Quality Framework initiative in collaboration with state Medicaid programs and, in 2010, CHIP programs. She also leads CMS efforts in collaboration with other federal agencies to implement Title IV of the Children’s Health Insurance Reauthorization Act of 2009 to improve the quality of health care for children.

Prior to joining CMS, Ms. Dailey was a quality manager with Schaller Anderson, a national Medicaid health care consulting firm, and was senior regional quality advisor for CIGNA HealthCare. She has coordinated strategic planning for the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health and was the research project coordinator for the nation’s first childhood cancer screening project. She is the author of a nonfiction book for parents of children with life-threatening illness by Facts on File. Ms. Dailey is a certified professional in health care quality, and earned her master of science degree in nursing management from Johns Hopkins University. Her clinical experience includes pediatric oncology and neonatal intensive care.
